

The resort's craftsman-style ballroom was given a temporary overhaul to accommodate the couple's distinct vision. It was entirely draped and carpeted in white to provide a stark backdrop for the custom-built square "shadow box" dining tables and sleek matching chairs that were dressed in turquoise suede. Each sunken centerpiece was comprised of a variety of candles and crystals, as well as glass cylinders filled with turquoise water and sprays of orchids, tulips, and hydrangea. Specialty lighting further illuminated each elaborate display. Turquoise stemware, bubbled glass chargers, and turquoise napkins, along with custom-designed favor boxes filled with either truffles for the men or candles for the women, completed each place setting. The tables were mirrored overhead by square turquoise chandeliers.
