

A gorgeous location, astonishing décor, and breathtaking details composed the order for the day that Laura Brizuela and Michael Geliebter would be joined in matrimony.

“I wanted it to look like a fairy tale – one in which everybody felt the romance in the room,” confides the bride, who had quite the group devoted to bringing her every wedding fantasy to life. In addition to an exemplary team of event professionals, Michael’s mother and father leant their support by contributing wonderfully creative ideas to the event design and enthusiastically encouraging a grand and opulent scale for the proceedings respectively.

The Crystal Garden of the world-famous Beverly Hills Hotel was exquisitely tented for the couple’s evening ceremony. Gossamer fabric established an ethereal space lavished with garlands of alabaster orchids. Antique roses bordered a center aisle paved with a custom runner embossed with the couple’s elegant monogram. Branches of glossy green leaves were weaved throughout the décor, including a riot of creamy blooms that composed a dazzling floral arch. Fairy lights and candles cast an ambient glow.

“The [music] was unbelievable. We had several rotating bands representing different genres, capping off the night with a DJ to represent popular music.”
