

A full night of dancing to the sounds of a live band from Israel concluded the festivities of the day, and the couple and their guests couldn't have been happier with the outcome. "Don't get caught up in the tiny details – decide in advance what really matters to you," says the bride. "The day is about celebrating love, family, and friends." Max was elated that everything turned out as he had imagined. "Overall, the attention to detail and care for our guests was very important to us, and the day reflected just that," shares the groom. "It was perfect."
